Mattie N. Dixon Community Cupboard Raises Thousands to Feed Our Community with Help from Ambler Savings Bank's Matching Grant

Ambler, Pennsylvania – Food insecurity continues to increase in these pandemic times and the folks at Mattie N. Dixon Community Cupboard (Mattie Dixon) are here to help. Their annual campaign, with the support of Ambler Savings Bank's Matching Grant of $5,000, continues to raise funds to fight hunger in our community.

Over 375 households are current recipients of bi-monthly groceries from Mattie Dixon. Not only do they provide food but also have resources for clothing, household items, employment services and emergency financial assistance.

Making the holidays brighter, they are currently distributing holiday meal boxes, and gift cards to help families purchase gifts for their children and grandchildren. Funds raised will help Mattie Dixon to purchase food and continue their mission far into the future. Their long-term goal is to become a client choice food pantry, which operates more like a small grocery store, allowing clients to hand select their own food, giving a sense of dignity, control and limiting waste.

“As the pandemic drags on, food insecurity continues to rise and we want our community to know we are here to help,” said Cindy Wedholm, Executive Director, Mattie N. Dixon Community Cupboard.

“It's thanks to donations from our annual appeal and community businesses like Ambler Savings Bank who step up, that we are able to continue serving,” she continued.

“Organizations that provide food assistance are vitally important to our community. Cindy and her team are doing amazing work that we are proud to support,” commented Roger Zacharia, President and CEO, Ambler Savings Bank.
